Quotes and Case Studies

Steer Davies Gleave

The Situation

Sygnus were asked to tender for the redesign, refurbishment and furnishing of the complete premises in London's SE1. This request to manage the entire project was to happen within a short time frame and to a fixed budget.

The purpose of the refurbishment was due to the increase of staffing levels from 195 to 229, and to create a brighter, better and larger working environment for all staff, whilst catering for the specific and special needs of individual departments. All works were to be carried out without moving any staff off site, and without interruption to their normal working days.

The Solution

The design and furnishing team worked closely with SDG managements and the appointed liaison persons from each of the departments to achieve plans to the satisfaction of all concerned. The Project manager worked out the phasing of the works for the refurbishment, decoration, electrical works, carpeting, furniture etc. SDG had taken on two additional office units adjacent to the existing ten units and we were able to completely refurbish and furnish these first. This enabled the project team to move departments into these areas, thus enabling a rolling refurbishment programme to start for the other ten units. These were completed continuously two at a time until all completed.

The Result

Due to the hard work of all concerned the project was completed on time, within budget.

Safety in the workplace

The key considerations when planning an office environment are lighting, electricity, flooring, emergency exits, facilities and much more. Accidents happen in the office but the health and safety measures need to be matched to the level of risk.

From an office planning and office furniture perspective, any new or refurbished office space needs to be ergonomically compliant. Ergonomics is the science concerned with the “fit” between people and their work. It looks to ensure that the equipment and environment suits each worker and their limitations and capabilities.

It's a very important aspect of health and safety in the workplace and it affects everyone.
